President's Corner

David Carmichael

March marks my first month as your new club president. It is a pleasure to step into this role as part of a group as well-organized, active and collegial as the Mesilla Valley Fly Fishers.

I want to thank Jim Sorenson for his two years of able service as president; he has set the bar high, and I will do my best to follow in his footsteps in helping the club to enhance the fly fishing experience for all our members. If you have interests that haven't been included in past club activities or ideas for speakers or trips, please contact me or one of the other board members, and we'll see what we can do to address them.

Last month we had another successful year-end celebration at our annual banquet. With about 75 members in attendance and the most extensive list of prizes we've seen in recent years, there were plenty of opportunities for members to walk away with some great equipment and other prizes. The big winners were Amy Buesing, George Giovanni and Paul Turner, who all won fly rods. As always, the brisket, sausage and pulled pork from Sparky's were great, as was the new item, smoked turkey breast; thank you Josie and Teako! Teako said he is considering adding the smoked turkey to the menu at Sparky's, so if you liked it, let him know. Our banquet speaker Tim Cammisa gave an interesting talk on how to prepare for fishing unfamiliar waters and how to record our experiences in a way that will help in planning future trips. Earlier in the day, Tim put on a great fly tying demonstration, and if you are interested in viewing his work and techniques, there are links to dozens of his fly tying videos on his webpage at www.troutandfeather.com. The videos are quite good, and he is celebrating the recent milestone of reaching 1 million viewers on his website.

Some years ago when I was introducing my daughter to fly fishing, she made an interesting observation. After discussing casting, fly lines, tippets, fly selection and presentation, she commented, "So Dad, I guess the point of fly fishing is to make it as hard as possible to actually catch a fish?" Although she no longer feels that way, from her vantage point as a beginner, it seemed there was a lot to learn. That much is true; one of the great things about fly fishing is that no matter how much experience one has, there is always more to learn. In that sense, fly angling is a contemplative endeavor. So, in the interests of contemplation, let's reflect on what Leonardo (Da Vinci, not DiCaprio) had to say about rivers:

"When you put your hand in a flowing stream, you touch the last that has gone before and the first of what is still to come."

In modern terms, this quotation might be interpreted to mean that ongoing change is the fundamental essence of the universe, or that the flow of a river is a metaphor for life. But as anglers, we know that it is more literally true as well. The very rivers we fish and enjoy are constantly changing, affected by everything from fluctuations in precipitation, deforestation, fires, grazing, and floods to subtle shifts in bottom structure, currents, cloud cover and shadows falling across the water. When we revisit a stream, even one we know well, we are really making its acquaintance all over again. And our days on the water are not simply an opportunity to catch fish; they are opportunities to observe and perhaps become immersed in the rhythms of nature, both large and small.

The Rio Penasco is a wonderful spring stream, well-known for having reliable Baetis hatches even in winter. We are fortunate to have access to the Penasco as our home waters, and I encourage all our club members to take time to visit the lease whenever you can. Last month Miriam and I fished the club lease during mid-week, and had a wonderful time. Although the unseasonably warm temperatures caused the hatch to come off earlier in the day than we expected, mayflies were still emerging at 11:30 while we were rigging up our rods, and the trout happily took our RS2 emergers until 2:30. Yes, we had a good afternoon, catching 15 trout and almost as many chubs. And Miriam took the honors for the largest trout of the day, a nice 15-16 inch holdover male rainbow. But we also experienced the magic of being in the water when a mayfly emerges and lifts off the water nearby, the soaring visit by a red-tailed hawk, and the intimate beauty of ferns greening up under a waterfall. These are the experiences that make it worthwhile to visit the river again and again, each time touching the first of what is still to come.

Next on our agenda is the general club meeting on March 14. Our guest speakers will be Dustin Myers and Jerry Monzingo from the U.S. Forest Service, who will discuss the status of the Gila National Forest and Gila trout conservation efforts. I hope to see you at the meeting, or on the river.

Rod building, rod building, all is going great. We have 8 Vets building their own fly rods this year. Hook & Hackle fly shop has donated 600 fly rod blanks with components to Project Healing Waters. We have 7 Vets building graphite rods and one is building a bamboo rod. Lots of thanks goes out to Karen Erickson for her help with the Vet on building this fly rod.

We have had a couple of fishing events this last month and a couple of fly tying events. We will also be working with the wounded warrior transition battalion several times this year. Dates to be finalized shortly.

We have the wounded warrior resilience program fly tying on March 16th and fishing at the lease on the 23rd. We need as many volunteers as possible for these events. We also tie flies on the last Wednesday of the month at the Las Cruces VA Clinic. If you have not volunteered to work with these Vets, try it, you will have a great feeling of support to the Vets.

I will be attending a PHW training session, leaving on the 12th of March and returning on the 16th. Hope to have some good info on what is going on with the program, ways to get more donations and tools to support the handicapped Vets.

All donations that come from the local area stay in the local area to support our local Vets. Any donations/checks need to specify the Las Cruces area in the memo section. Thanks for all the support from the MVFF club, the NMG&F and all our great volunteers.

For more information about PHWFF see www.projecthealingwaters.org. Contact Ron Bellerose (575-680-5516), flyfishnh@hotmail.com if you wish to volunteer to help out.

New Mexico Native Trout Update

Jeff Arterburn

An open comment period is concluding 03/04/16 for the proposal to construct a permanent fish barrier on Willow Creek in Catron County NM, located approximately 300 feet upstream of the confluence with Gilita Creek. It is extremely important to have this permanent structure replace the existing temporary gabion barrier in the same location, in order to provide protection for the population of native Gila Trout that have been restored to this stream and are available as a recreational fishery. This permanent fish barrier will protect this upstream section from invasive non-native trout species that may be located downstream, and provides needed improved performance since the temporary gabion only serves as an impediment to upstream migration during low stream flows. Planning is in preparation for a willow pole planting project on Willow Creek this season, which is a great way for individuals and families to get out and have a fun weekend, while helping to start the stream habitat recovery process so that we will have improved fishing for the future. Another exciting opportunity is on a fast track to restore Gila Trout to Mineral Creek. The Whitewater Baldy Fire resulted in extirpation of non-native trout and depending on one last round of survey results to verify their absence, the plan is to stock this stream with Gila Trout. Whitewater Creek is also on track for restoration efforts, and for more information follow this link to the NMDGF Gila Trout Recovery and Angling page, then under the "Current Projects" tab you'll find the Gila Trout Management Update presentation from the public meeting in Glenwood 2/16/2016. <http://www.wildlife.state.nm.us/fishing/native-new-mexico-fish/gila-trout-recovery-angling/> We'll also be planning to help out during the June 4th Kid's Fishing Derbies at Lake Roberts and Grindstone Reservoir so mark your calendars for those events.
