High Country Reverie

We all know that trout live in beautiful places, and visiting those places is one of the reasons we enjoy the sport of fly fishing. Yet, the enjoyment of fly angling is often not in the destination but in the journey. The very process of finding and then traveling to the high country can evoke feelings of awe, wonder, calm and solace. Driving up from the valley floor in the first rays of morning sunlight, I am struck by the silvery glow of the ripening grasses and Apache plume, backlit and nodding in the gentle breeze. The scent of roasting chili and sagebrush float up the canyon, mingling with the pungent aroma of juniper and ripening apples. Wild sunflowers and asters nestle in the crevices and crannies of the cliffs making up the canyon walls. The air cools gradually (5.3 degrees per 1,000 ft.) as I gain altitude, and the dew still sparkles on the grass in the high mountain meadows. The air is filled with the distinctive scent of thyme leaf dogweed as clouds of mayflies rise off the water in their timeless mating ritual. The aspens are just starting to turn golden, and I am infused by another early fall morning in the high country --- where trout live and where the soul is rejuvenated.

Click for Info

When we enter such special places, wherever they are throughout the west, we often do so for the privilege of pursuing trout. If we remember to bring our rods and reels, it is indeed a fishing trip. If we forget some key component of our gear, the outing becomes a picnic. If we forget lunch, it becomes a hike. But it's all good. All of those activities are wonderful opportunities to appreciate nature and find a respite from the desert heat and the rush of the urban world below.

Losses on the Horizon

Here are some of the people who are presently trying to take those experiences and our high country sanctuary away from us:

- Congress has allowed the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) to expire (The Trust for Public Land, 10/1/2018). The LWCF was established by Congress in 1964 in a bipartisan effort to safeguard natural areas and provide recreational opportunities for Americans in every state. It has been an extremely successful and popular program, assisting in the protection and maintenance of National Parks, wildlife refuges, National Forests, rivers and lakes habitats, and community parks. The LWCF has been one of the most important sources of funding for conservation initiatives, and all 33 counties in New Mexico have had projects funded by the program. The revenues are derived from a portion of the royalties collected by the government from oil companies conducting offshore drilling in public waters on the continental shelf.

As with other recent policy shifts made by the current administration, it seems that allowing the fund to expire is intended to increase the profits of those in the extractive industries at the expense of everyone else, including anglers and other outdoor enthusiasts. If you would like more information, or would like to express concerns to your elected officials, The Trust for Public Land (www.tpl.org) and the LWCF Coalition (www.lwcfcoalition.com) would be good places to start.

- While the proposed Pebble Mine in the Bristol Bay watershed and the renewal of its permitting process by the Trump administration has been widely discussed in the media, the permit for the proposed Donlin Mine has proceeded with much less public awareness and attention. The Donlin Mine would consist of a 2 square mile open pit located 10 miles north of Crooked Creek, Alaska. In addition to the large resultant tailing piles, the environmental impacts would include 315 miles of new pipeline, nine new airstrips, and numerous new roads. If developed, it will have extensive and permanent adverse impacts on the natural environment and the many communities located along the Kuskokwin River. The mine is a direct threat to subsistence and commercial salmon fishing on the river and to all those Alaskans whose livelihood depend on the natural resources of the area. If you would like more information on the status of that project and how to help support those whose lives would be disrupted by the quest for short term profit, please visit www.akaction.org.

- Mining fever coming soon to our own backyard? An Australian-owned mining company (why is it almost always foreign companies?) has proposed to create the Copper Flat Mine near Hillsboro, NM, about 10 miles west of Caballo Lake. The proposed mine would draw a large amount of water from the Animas drainage to create a ponding area so large it would require a 2 mile long dam to hold the water. The ore extraction pit will penetrate 200 feet deeper than the water table, thus dewatering the local aquifer. The mine would threaten the southernmost population of Rio Grande cutthroat trout just upstream and the rare Arizona sycamore, not to mention potential impacts to Hatch chili production, pecans, or other downstream agricultural pursuits. Mine permit hearings started on September 24th in T or C, and a second round of hearings will occur from October 23–26. To find out where the hearings will be held and to learn more about the likely impacts of the proposed mine, see the No Copper Flat Mine website at <https://nocopperflatmine.com> or contact Taylor Streit through the Taos Fly Shop (<https://taosflyshop.com>).

- Trump administration officials have signed an agreement that would open the Tongass National Forest and the 800-year old trees in its pristine old-growth forest to clearcutting and road construction. The Tongass presently generates $2 billion in economic activity from salmon runs, commercial and sport fisheries, tourism and recreation, but all of this would be lost if the administration's planned timber sales to large lumber companies go through. Most of the timber cut on public lands isn't even used in the United States; it is exported, mostly to Japan in log form rather than as finished lumber. The Sierra Club is mobilizing to fight this policy change in court. For more information see the Labroots website <https://www.labroots.com/trending/earth-and-the-environment/8238/congress-fell-tongass-s-800-year-old-trees> or the Sierra Club website.
- The Sierra Club also recently reported (press release, September 6, 2018) that the Trump administration has announced that the US Forest Service will allow companies to pursue sulfide ore mining leases immediately adjacent to the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness, the cornerstone of northern Minnesota's economy. The BWCA has long been on my bucket list; I've known several anglers who speak of the unparalleled opportunities to canoe, portage and camp in pristine wilderness while fishing for trout, walleye, smallmouth bass and northern pike. Leachates from mining activities are incompatible with established land use in the region and are a direct and dire threat to healthy fisheries. For more information, visit www.sierraclub.org.

New Mexico high country, Cruces Basin Wilderness

Although I have expressed some hope and guarded optimism that our current administration would show some concern for the environmental health and preservation of our public lands, it now seems clear that such is simply not the case. For this administration, public lands are only for exploitation by the extractive industries. How would clear-cut logging look in any of these photos? How would mining activities look in or near any of these photos? How would heavy metals and the leakage of corrosive liquids be compatible with the long term health of cold water fisheries?

Club News

The club lease was stocked with 500 trout on September 29th. Thanks to all the club members and their kids who help carry the buckets, especially to those areas that were/are difficult to reach with vehicles. The water was clean and clear, and some of the stockers were already feeding by mid-afternoon. I caught several trout in areas with faster moving water below riffles using San Juan worms, but the largest fish (16+ inches) were those caught in slow moving water with a Peñasco chub pattern streamer. The cottonwood leaves are starting to turn yellow and the temperatures were pleasant all day, so now would be a good time to get out and enjoy the lease.

Next month the club will host our second Fly Fishing Film Tour event at Ardivino's Desert Crossing in Sunland Park, NM. The event will be on Sunday, November 11. This year ticket sales will be handled in person at our club meetings and at the door, or online using the MVFF PayPal account. Purchasing tickets directly through the PayPal account is recommended, as it will give us the most accurate estimate of the number of members who plan to attend as we get closer to the event. Price will be $35 for lunch, a couple of hours of fly fishing films, and several raffles, the details of which are discussed elsewhere in the newsletter. Let's get the signups going!

Ron Bellerose
PHWFF Coordinator

Project Healing Waters has completed its time as an official PHW. It is sad but no one came forward to take over as program lead. I have delivered the fly rods, vises and fly tying material to the Tucson and Phoenix PHW groups. I will be working with them as a volunteer in the future.

The MVFF club will take up the slack and work with our Vets, their spouses and children of the local area. We will also work with Ft. Bliss Wounded Warrior Transition Battalion to get them fly tying and fishing. More later on just what we will be doing in the future. It has been great working with the club and the Vets.

Thanks to all who supported fishing with the Battalion on the 28th of September at Grindstone Lake. Volunteers were Alfred Lopez, Carl Lieberwirth, Tracy Lieberwirth, Ted Hopkins, Jim Sorenson, Ray Kirby, Irish Stephens and Oscar Moreno. Oscar made a special effort and provided the lunch for all. Thank you so much.

Next newsletter will not have a PHW section but may be a different title. Thank you all for your support.

Lady Anglers Update

Mary Hoffman

The Lady Anglers is a group of women MVFF members who love to fly fish and have fun doing it. Our fall trip to the upper Rio Grande in Colorado was unfortunately cancelled due to water conditions. No other trips are planned at this time but stay tuned. In the meantime, individual members of the group continue to fish in New Mexico and elsewhere.

Information on Lady Angler events and fishing trips is made available to all women on our e-mail list and through announcements in the MVFF newsletter and at monthly club meetings. Beginners are welcome and the only requirement for joining us is MVFF membership. To add your name to the e-mail list, or for more information, contact Mary Hoffman at 505-710-5229. ↑

Gila/Rio Grande Chapter (780) of Trout Unlimited

By Jeff Arterburn, President

Trout Unlimited Response to Commentary

The letter to the editor reproduced below was published in the Las Cruces Sun News Sept.

16, 2018. The links to the TU response and the original commentary are included below.

Anglers support Game and Fish actions

As local volunteers with Trout Unlimited (a non-profit organization with over 1,400 members in New Mexico dedicated to trout and their watersheds), we would like to respond to the guest commentary titled "Game & Fish needs to stop widespread fish poisoning" published August 28. In contrast to the position of this commentary, we are strongly supportive of the active role that the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish has taken to address the challenges facing trout fisheries in our region.

The headwaters of the Gila River watershed are the only place where native Gila trout are found and this rare species was listed as endangered under the Endangered Species Act of 1973. With progress toward recovery guided by the multi-agency Gila Trout Recovery Team, Gila trout were down-listed to "threatened" status in 2006 and anglers were given the first chance to fish for these beautiful trout in decades.

The use of rotenone-based treatments is well established and scientifically validated as a safe, effective, environmentally compatible method for fisheries management, and is a necessary step for restoring Gila trout to their native streams. All trout populations in our region have suffered from drought and increasing temperatures, and in 2012-2013 the Whitewater-Baldy and Silver wildfires burned vast sections of the Gila and devastated many of our favorite trout streams. The Department has worked with other agencies and stakeholders to expand public access to Gila trout fisheries such as Willow Creek, Mineral Creek, and the restoration of Gila trout to Whitewater Creek is progressing rapidly so that this recreational fishery will soon be a destination for anglers and visitors producing associated economic benefits for the local communities. Working together we can improve the quality of trout fishing and ensure the survival of Gila trout as a legacy for our children and their future.

Other Gila/Rio Grande Chapter of Trout Unlimited Activities

A happy fly fishing student with his own fly pattern at the Gila River Festival Fly Fishing field trip, "Wild and Scenic Fishing," held Sunday, September 23. Thanks to all the instructors who helped make this years event a success: Jeff Arterburn, Ron Belanger, Ron Bellerose, Brad Shuster, John Trujillo, Zeb Trujillo and GRF Volunteer Lee Hannon.

The recently installed Willow Creek Gila Trout Informational sign was designed with input from NMDGF, USFS, USFWS, NMED, MVFF, and funding was provided through a grant to GRG-TU from the Western Native Trout Initiative. The sign was printed by our good fly fishing friend Jeff Banegas at Able Sign Company, Las Cruces, NM.

Reel and Rod/Reel Combo Raffle Norm and Donna Mabie Memorial Scholarship

The Mesilla Valley Flyfishers was founded in April of 1987 and incorporated in 1991. One of the primary founders was Norm Mabie, who with a group of others, put all the pieces together and served as the club's first president. Unfortunately, Norm passed away in 2004. The Club established an endowed scholarship at New Mexico State University in Norm's name. Norm's wife, Donna passed away in 2017 and the Club recently added her name to the scholarship. Please click on this link about Norm and the scholarship www.zianet.com/mvff/scholarship/scholarship.html.

The Mabie family recently put the family home up for sale. David Mabie, one of the Mabie sons, gave the Club four reels and several rods that belonged to the family. The Board decided to raffle three reels and a rod/reel combo in a raffle like the one that was held for the Mabie Legacy Rod. All of the proceeds will be added to the Scholarship Fund. The reels have been used by Norm, but they are in like new condition. The rod is like new also and one of the most beautiful rods that I have seen made by Norm. The reels are: a Ross San Miguel #1 reel, a Ross San Miguel #2 reel and a Ross Gunnison #1 reel. The rod/reel combo is a custom 9-ft 5-weight Fisher rod and a Ross Gunnison #2 reel. We will have pictures of these items on the MVFF website.

Like the last raffle, I am reaching out to our out-of-town members to have an equal opportunity to participate in these raffles. There is a separate raffle board for each reel and for the rod/reel combo like the one below. Each board has 100 squares and each square is $10. You can buy as many squares as you want. You can pick your own squares, or we can pick squares for you. Your name will go in each square that you buy.

The winner of each item will be picked when all of the squares of that board are sold. We hope that we can pick all of the winners at the Fly Fishing Film Tour at Ardivino's Desert Crossing in Sunland Park, NM on November 11th. You can donate online via the MVFF PayPal website or mail a check of $10 for each square to Mesilla Valley Flyfishers, Inc., P.O. Box 2222, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88004-2222. Tell us which squares you want and give us a telephone number to contact you. YOU DON'T NEED TO BE PRESENT TO WIN. ↑

Club Outings Planned

The board is now discussing possible future outings and would welcome suggestions from members.

Where do you want to go? Let them know. If you have comments or suggestions for additional trips pass them to any of the Board members.

Current trips planned are:

- Nov. 4 - 7 — Annual fall Club trip to the San Juan. This trip is fully subscribed.
